Commodore's Column

What a world we have been living in for the last two years – so hard to make any plans! Like many (most?) people my Christmas plans had to be altered from the original ones. Having looked forward to resuming our normal NOSCA meetings the committee now feel that our January meeting will have to be on zoom so look out for the link in your email inbox.

I think for the moment we are going to have to decide whether meetings beyond January are in person or on zoom on a month by month basis – but who knows?

As we're all sailors we're used to the wind and sea conditions playing havoc with our plans so

I'm sure we'll all cope with the ongoing covid issues. Most of us are no longer as frightened of the virus as we were this time last year – but those whose immunity or other systems are not fully functioning still face dangers, so we must remember that for them mixing with others is getting more problematic at the moment.

We all have our favourite weather forecasting apps – but I haven't heard of a covid forecasting app yet!

See you all on zoom soon – and may I wish you all a better year for 2022!
